

HITS AT THAW AND HIS MOTHER IN PRISON REPORT

Supt. Collins Backs Up Mat-tewan Doctor in Answering Charges of Cruelty.

MATTER OF PRIVILEGES.

Declares Prisoner Seeks Favors Not Granted to Other Inmates of Institution.

BANY, March 10.—"Harry K. Thaw seems to have had his own way during the greater part of his life, whether in confinement or at liberty. Now that he is in an institution, where he can neither borrow, beg, steal nor buy privileges he complains of 'unfair treatment.'"

The foregoing statement was made to-day by Supt. C. V. Collins of the State prison department when questioned concerning Clarence J. Shearn's recent letter to Gov. Dix, as counsel for Thaw's mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, in which he alleges neglect of duty, misadministration and abuse of power on the part of Supt. Collins and Dr.
Albert Warren Ferris, President of the State Commission in Lunacy, in connection with the management of the Mat-tewan State Hospital for the Insane, where Thaw is confined.

Protested to Dix.
Mr. Shearn in his letter protested to Gov. Dix that because Thaw reported instances of alleged assaults on inmates, Dr. Robert B. Lamb, the Superintendent of the hospital, had issued orders against Mrs. Thaw visiting her son, as she had been permitted to do for years past, and had interfered with Thaw's mail and with his right to consult counsel.

In reply to these allegations, Supt.
Collins made a letter to the governor last October from Dr. Lamb, in which he said:

"We seem face to face with a straightforward proposition. It is this: Shall Harry K. Thaw and his mother, Mary C. Thaw, formulate rules for the government of this institution and their own visiting, or shall Harry K. Thaw and his mother, Mary C. Thaw, abide by rules formulated by the institution itself and fairly and impartially applied to all its patients. This, in a nutshell, is the situation which has to be met."

This letter was in reply to one from Collins, directing Dr. Lamb to make applications relative to a letter written a few days before by Mr. Shearn concerning Thaw's case.

Privileges for Thaw.
"We don't get instructions in ethical culture for $25 a month, the amount the State pays attendants at Matteawan," said Supt. Collins, "but we do demand that the attendants treat patients humanely. To grant Thaw's requests would require the services of a special attendant."

"The attendants are not permitted to carry a weapon of any kind to defend themselves, and within the past six years two employees have been killed by inmates at Matteawan. Dr. Lamb himself was the victim of an attempted assault within two years when he was struck with a stone by an inmate."

"A great many of the inmates are men of homicidal tendencies. Their mania is murder, and while those under Dr. Lamb's charge are given systematic treatment based on humane methods, many would exercise their murderous designs upon any one who crosses them or orders them to do something they do not want to do."

"So far as Thaw never having been acquitted is concerned, my memory is that there are now twenty-one other patients in the institution under exactly the same circumstances, some of them among the most dangerous we have."

"Thaw has been and will be given only such privileges as the poorest inmate of the institution may enjoy should he ask them. If the mother or any member of the immediate family of any other inmate of the institution is allowed to live in close proximity to the hospital, he or she, upon request, would be granted the same courtesies that have been extended to Mrs. Thaw during her temporary residence at Matteawan."

Patients Not Attacked.
Dr. Lamb in his letter to Supt. Collins says:
"So far as can be learned, Harry K.
Thaw has never been touched or struck by any employee of the hospital. If at any other time any other patient has been struck, kicked or injured by an employee of the hospital, the matter has had immediate attention and the employee has been forthwith discharged."

Concerning the allegation that Andrew Anderson, a patient, had been brutally treated by Attendant McDonald, Dr. Lamb states that "no reliable witness could be found who would say that McDonald had been struck, kicked or otherwise injured by Anderson. The patient in question was stripped by a physician but not a mark, scratch or bruise of any sort resulted from this alleged brutal assault."

Dr. Lamb says that a representative of Mr. Shearn's office called on him a few days after the alleged assault, claiming to have evidence that such an assault had been committed. Dr. Lamb thereupon wrote to Mrs. Thaw that "if you have evidence to show that Mc-Donald is brutal, as you and your counsel claim, please produce it at once in order that the matter may be immediately settled."

"Of course none of us believe that your son is really afraid of Attendant McDonald. He is practically alone with him on numerous occasions during the day and makes no manifestations of fear. It is only in the presence of visitors that he shows this terror. All of which tends us to believe that this

Happiness Is a Habit, Merely a Point of View, to Woman Psychologist.

Physical Fitness, Proper Nourishment and Esteem of Fellow-Men Absolute Requisites to the Joy of Living, Says Dr. Mary Halton.

Housework Not Exercise;
No Normal Woman Derives Joy From Sweeping a Floor—Dusting Corners of Brain More Useful Than Dusting a Room.

By Ethel Lloyd Patterson.

These are the things necessary to happiness:
The esteem and respect of your fellow-men.
Interests outside of yourself.
Good health.
These are the things, afflicted with which no human being can be happy.

An insufficient
quantity of fresh air.
Insufficient nourishment.
Bad digestion.

Now, the person who has made out this interesting list of requisites for a practical psychologist. You all know her as Dr. Mary Halton, a practicing physician, with offices on upper Madison avenue.

"Happiness is a habit," said Dr. Halton to-day. "Happiness is a condition outside of ourselves; I mean it is a point of view. How often do we see women surrounded with every luxury, with every wish for their physical well-being satisfied, and yet they are miserable. They have beautiful clothes, a beautiful home and all the good things they wish to eat, yet they are ill and unhappy."

Nothing Satisfies.
"If they exercise, the exercise does them no good. If they eat, the food does not nourish them. If they think, their thoughts do not bring them contentment."

"What is the cure?" I asked.
"The interest outside of one's self," Dr.
Halton replied, briefly. "To be happy we must care for other people and we must know they care for us. Each of us has his or her own idea of the greatest happiness, of course. When we speak of the thing we strive for more nearly resembles contentment, while we are younger, happiness seems to us more brilliant emotion. But, however, our ideas may differ in development, the fundamental principle of happiness for all of us is the knowledge that we have the love of our fellow-men."

"But the happiness one derives from the love of one's fellow creatures is an essential spiritual emotion," I suggested, "and you just now implied that food and exercise could influence happiness."

"The brain is reached through the senses," Dr. Halton explained. "Take a sweet, good-natured child and feed it for one week on food that contains insufficient nourishment, and see what becomes of the child's disposition. Or, if you prefer, take a perfectly healthy, sweet-natured child and feed it for one week on perfectly nourishing food, but for which it has an aversion, and see how long the child remains sweet tempered."

Housework Not Exercise.
"Again, let a woman come to me whose body plainly shows the need of healthy exercise, and yet have her tell me that she takes all the exercise she requires in dusting and sweeping.
Why, housework is not exercise. A normal woman derives no real joy from sweeping a room."

"As a matter of fact," interpolated Dr. Halton, "whenever I go into an insufficiently illuminated house I always feel like saying to the woman who keeps it so: 'Don't let your house keep you from the light. Forget the dust in the corners of the room and go for the dust in the corners of your brain.'"

"But you were saying housework is not healthy exercise, conducive to happiness," I reminded her.
"And that is just what I mean," continued Dr. Halton. "Housework is not an all-around exercise stimulated by interest. You cannot make persons physically fit with routine work. And you have to make them interested in what they are doing to get real results.
When an athlete is in training, he is not given one or two set and unvaried exercises to perform. Every muscle is brought into play, and his imagination and interest are kept alive."

"That is why women cannot thrive on housework. It is not so much that the proper muscles are not brought into play; it is more that housework is scarcely the sort of labor which stimu-lates one's imagination."

"I see that the things you have named which will surely make a person unhappy are purely physical conditions," I commented.
"That is because we want want such different things it would be impossible to state broadly what spiritual aspirations would have to be taken from the human race to leave absolute discontent," answered Dr. Halton. "But experience has taught us there are certain alleged fear is largely theatrical and assault had been committed. Dr. Lamb

thereupon wrote to Mrs. Thaw that "if you have evidence to show that Mc-Donald is brutal, as you and your counsel claim, please produce it at once in order

physical needs without which the spirit cannot flower; certain physical needs common to the most highly organized person, and the most phlegmatic alike.

"Sufficient rest is one of the physical conditions necessary to human happiness. One cannot deprive one's body of the normal amount of relaxation and remain mentally content. Fresh air is another crying need of happiness. The constant breathing of impure air at-trophies the brain. And we must have food that is both nourishing and that appeals to us personally."

"If," concluded Dr. Halton, "we can obey these physical laws and at the same time, cultivate interests outside ourselves, happiness will come as sure and as beautifully as the spring is coming to us now."

CLAY M. GREENE TO TAKE BRIDE FROM PACIFIC COAST.

Playwright, 64, to Wed Mrs. Robinson, 38, Some Time in Present Month.

The wedding of Mrs. Laura G. Robinson and Clay M. Greene will be understood among their friends to-day, he suggested some time during the month. License for the marriage has been issued at the City Hall. The President of the Lamb Club gave his age as sixty-four years, while the bride-elect is recorded as thirty-eight. Attached to the application is the record of Mr.
Robinson's divorce from Edward S. Robinson, which was granted at Lake George Nov. 4, 1907.

Mr. Greene has been prominent as a playwright for many years. His work sometimes took the religious vein, and in "Nazareth" and "Christmas on the Island" he found some criticism from certain circles. Mr. Greene's wife, who was a Miss Wheeler, died last fall at Alameda, Cal.

Mrs. Robinson was prominent on the Pacific Coast prior to coming to New York. She has two daughters who have just entered society, and a son is now a cadet at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Mrs. Robinson lives at the Calumet Hotel, No. 30 West Fifty-seventh street.

YOUTH SHOOTS HIMSELF IN WASHINGTON HOTEL.

Hudson Probably Will Recover, but Is Yet Too Weak to Explain Motive of His Deed.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Ralph Hudson, nineteen, said to be a resident of Montclair, N. J., is in a Washington hospital severely wounded by a bullet, self-inflicted, in his room at the Metropolitan Hotel. The bullet missed the heart by scarcely an inch and penetrated the lung. These messages were found:

"Notify my mother, Mrs. A. J. Bona-field, Arlington, Md."
"Notify Guy M. Bonafield, Thompson, N. Y."

Hudson's condition to-day is improved and the surgeons say that except for the danger of pneumonia he will recover. He is yet too weak to explain the motive of his deed.

OLD INJURY PROVES FATAL.

Dr. Hoshak Schlemm Dies as Result of Accident in January.

Dr. Hoshak Schlemm died to-day at Mount Sinai Hospital of injuries he received in an elevator at the Yorkville Casino while attending a reception there Jan. 19. His foot caught in the door of the elevator and he was thrown violently to the floor, breaking his hip.

Dr. Schlemm was forty-five years old. He was a graduate of the University of Dorpat, Russia, and came to this country to pursue graduate study eleven years ago. After four years he returned to Russia and remained until driven out by a renewal of the Jewish persecutions.

He leaves a widow and two children, who live at No. 310 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street.

SEEKS TO FREE WEALTHY WOMAN HELD AS INSANE

Cousin Says Mrs. Balch Is Sane, but Daughter Had Her Sent to Asylum.

HAS $500,000 ESTATE.

Her Letters Intercepted, but One Got Out Hidden in a Patient's Stocking.

The charge is made to-day in an affidavit filed in connection with an application for a writ of habeas corpus, that Mrs. Collins L. Balch, seventy-three years old, owner of an estate worth $500,000, is illegally detained in Bloomington Asylum on the petition of her daughter, Miss Grace C. Balch, of No. 87 East Fifty-third street.

The writ is returnable to-morrow before Justice Mills, chamberlain in the Supreme Court in Mount Vernon. Mr.
Fowler of the law firm of Fowler & Lesser, No. 55 Liberty street, who filed the application for Harlan P. Sweet of Los Angeles, a first cousin of the woman, said to-day that when the circumstances were related in court the Justice decided that the commitment was illegal, whether the woman is sane or insane. She will be produced by the hospital authorities to-morrow.

Say She Was Kidnapped.

The attorneys assert that the affidavit charge that Mrs. Balch, as a result of a conspiracy, was practically kidnapped from her home, and that she had been kept from communicating with the outside world since June 20 last, when she was confined.

Her husband was at the time in a private hospital in Central Park West, near One Hundred and First street, and died Sept. 24, after an operation without seeing his wife, who is said to have been told of his death only recently.

Among the papers in the case is a copy of the original commitment, signed by Justice Gieriech, and the affidavits of the daughter Grace and the two physicians through whose offices the mother was sent away. These physicians are Drs. William Mabon and Herman A. Halstead. The latter operated on Mr. Balch for cancer.

The symptoms of insanity found were as follows:

"Her violence, her rambling talk, her excitability, her taking charge of and locking keys of the house, her being up and around the house at all hours of the night, her reaching food from her daughter at the table, her holding things and forgetting where she put them, her looking about the house with lighted tapers and setting fire to the house on three occasions."

The daughter also says her mother advised for servants and told those that called of alleged persecution on the part of the daughter.

The present attack of insanity began, according to the affidavit, about forty years ago when Mrs. Balch was hit on the head with a blacklock in the hands of a burglar.

Wrote Letters From Asylum.
The statement made by Mr. Sweet contains copies of letters sent him by cousin from the asylum. One of these in part is as follows:

Dear Sir:
I wrote you some weeks ago, but the letters were intercepted and not allowed to go out. Mother and Collie and her husband have entered into their last rest. Grace had an injury many years ago which resulted in epilepsy and she was a terrible mental persecution to me.

I was in good health, physical and mental, when I was injured but of late some trouble came and I have been in a bad way since. I have never been ill of mind or nervous since I have been here. The doctors say this. I want you to come and take me out.

She has had me committed by a judge so I have to stay here and you take me out. Come right along, the quickest way you can. I have plenty of money, but cannot get it while I am here. I have been here four months and four days. I pay $5 a week board, and do all my own work.
The food is awfully plain, and I am under the awful restriction of the institutions.

Letter Carried in Stocking.
Again she writes:
I have written letter after letter to my father, to my doctor and to you, all were captured. At last a lady patient carried the one to you away in her stocking. She wanted me to get away.

"If you only knew of my surroundings. Just imagine a small bedroom opening on a common hall where there are many other rooms just like it and every room containing a patient.
Such horrid noises as come of them make it hell."

There is no table. You know how we lived in Fifty-third street. I have to pay $5 per week for a small room and poor food and the privilege of sitting at the same table with a lot of inmates.

On the 12th of June Collie was operated on for cancer by Dr. Halstead, and while he lay, my dear darling, weak and wan and I was suffering agonies account of his awful condition, think that Grace, my daughter, whom I still love, saw the way to make good her old love and put me into an asylum.

She, my daughter, knew I was insane. She sent two doctors to inquire under the pretense of asking my desties about the disposal of my husband. They were with me fifteen minutes and asked me a dozen questions. Of course they got a big fee for what they are willing that I should be here and perish."

They are only trying to get my savings of many years—money they planned above everything.

"All a Case of Money."

Mr. Sweet was at the law office of Powler & Lesser this afternoon. He said that after learning of his cousin's incarceration he came East, and that he would not go away without her.

"It is all a case of money," he said.
"Had I not got the letter from her she might have died in the asylum, or eventually become insane herself. I know that she will be at once released.
I talked with her for several hours, and her manner was just as sane as yours or mine. The experts who have seen her say she is now perfectly sane."

"When I called on the daughter, Grace, she at first denied that she had had any part in the committing of her mother. When I told her that I had seen the papers she admitted her part.

She then said that she had no opposition to offer to her mother's being liberated but she refused to sign an application for the release."

Several physicians have examined Mrs. Balch and pronounced her sane.
They are Dr. Frederick Peterson, professor of mental diseases at Columbia and attending alienist at Bellevue; Dr.
Edward Fisher, professor of mental diseases at Columbia and Bellevue; Dr.
John E. Wilson of Flower Hospital; and Dr. Hollister, a noted alienist.

Mr. Balch was a pioneer in the manufacture of celluloid for commercial uses in this country. The Balches were formerly prominent in the affairs of a Washington Heights Presbyterian church, and had a summer home at Point Pleasant, N. J.

SHE'S ONLY SIXTEEN, BUT ACCUSED OF BIGAMY.

Husband, Locked Up for Wife Beating, Retaliates by Making Charge When Released.

Augusta Henrietta Schofield, of 72 Clinton street, Paterson, N. J., was held for the Grand Jury for bigamy by Justice of the Peace Maurice Shea to-day.
She is only a little over sixteen years old.

Frederick Anderson, who says he is Augusta's second husband, made the complaint against her. She had him arrested for beating her two weeks ago. Before the case came up he is journalist of the story of the previous marriage and threatened to tell of it.
She stayed away from court, but a case was made against Anderson by other evidence and he was sent to jail.

At once, on getting out, he started an investigation. He soon satisfied himself that Augusta had been married, with the consent of her parents, when she was just fifteen years old, to Charles W. Weinberger in Washington. Weinberger enlisted in the army immediately thereafter and the girl returned to her parents. Anderson says there is no record of an divorce.

SORRY NOW HE TRIED TO DIE

Old Man Slashes Wrists, but Repents and Seeks Help.

Friendless, ill, penniless, and seventy-five years old, Frank Kneel thought he was tired of life this morning and lashed his wrist with a penknife. The cut severed the arteries, and then, as the action of his old heart grew fainter and fainter, life again seemed sweet to him, and he struggled forth to get help.

Kneel lived alone in a room at No.
30 Hart street. He was at one time a prosperous real estate dealer in Willamsburg. Surviving family and friends, the old man's savings after a year, and recently he has been in poverty.

"After cutting his wrists he staggered to the Hamberg avenue police station and fell fainting in front of the desk, holding up his bleeding wrists to looking on. He was taken to the hospital and sent to the German Hospital, where the life tried to end, and he was saved, now hangs in the balance."

HUSBAND KILLED, SWEATSHOP GIRL ENDS HER LIFE TOO

Shoots Herself Beside Baby's Crib White Kinsfolk Discuss Dead Man.

HE FELL TEN STORIES.

Neighbor, Widowed in Similar Manner, Committed Suicide Same Way a Week Ago.

Vito Ditta, a young laborer, was working Tuesday on the tenth floor of an apartment house that is going up at the corner of Ninety-eighth street and Broadway. His foot slipped. He dropped between two girders and his body went twisting clear down to the basement.
He was dead long before the ambulance surgeon came.

They took him home to the little flat at No. 19 Elizabeth street, where he lived with his wife Rosa, twenty-three years old, a pants maker in a sweatshop, and his nine-months-old son, Antonio. Yesterday afternoon he was sick. This morning the relatives were assembled in the front room discussing the virtues of the dead man.

The young widow, with a life of toil at the sewing machine ahead of her and a lusty man-child to care for, sat silent. In the midst of the talk she got up and went into the rear room where little Antonio slept in his crib.
She closed the door behind her.

A moment later the kinspeople heard a shot. The dead man's brother, Giuseppe Ditta, ran to the rear room.
The mother was lying on the floor alongside her baby with a pistol in her hand. She had put a steel jacketed bullet right through her skull from side to side and although she still breathed, little Antonio was already the same as a full orphan.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Alberta Can-nara, who lived just across the street and who had been widowed in almost exactly the same fashion as Mrs. Ditta, killed herself with a revolver. She, too, was a sweatshop toiler with children to support.

MRS. GUSTAV H. SCHWAB
DIES ON TRAIN IN FLORIDA.

She Was Enroute North With Physician and Nurse—Family Shocked by Death.

News reached this city to-day of the death of Mrs. Gustav H. Schwab, wife of the former American agent of the South German Lloyd, on a northbound Florida East Coast train.

Mrs. Schwab had been in ill health for some time at her villa at Miami, and her physicians felt that she would have a better chance in a sharper climate. She was accompanied on the train by Dr. L. T. Chamberlain, a nurse and a maid.

Mrs. Schwab's death occurred as the train was passing through Fort Pierce.
The body was taken on to Jacksonville and the family hastened to that city by the first train.

WIDOW ENDS HER LIFE,
PRAYER BOOK AT HER SIDE.

Suicide by Gas Was Victim of Religious Mania, Police Say.

Ellen Eagan, sixty years old, a widow, who for two months had been living alone in the tenement, No. 304 East Seventy-fifth street, was found dead on her bed with a gas tube in her mouth late last night. A gas jet to which the tube was attached was turned on full.
On a chair beside the bed was a prayer book and on a table were a number of books. The walls of the room were covered with pictures of a Scriptural nature. Around the woman's neck was a scarlet and a string of rosary beads.

According to the police the woman had been suffering from religious mania.

TRANSFUSION CURES CHILD.

Father's Blood Injected into Infant Stops Hemorrhage.

A cure of a case of hemophilia, or excessive bleeding from slight bruises or cuts, has been effected in the Samaritan Hospital, at No. 68 Fourth avenue, Brooklyn.

The patient was a three-year-old infant.
At its birth the child showed symptoms of hemophilia, the hemorrhages coming from the mouth, nose, ears, eyes, and recently he has been in poverty.

The father of the infant, Physicians told him that the child would die unless transfusion of blood was tried.
For this purpose his own blood was drawn and the child's blood was replaced. The operation was performed by Donald McNaughton and Dr. P. W.
Bergen, house surgeon, performed the operation.

The child improved steadily and is out of danger.
